

GROWTH STRATEGY

Most founders try to scale at exactly the wrong moment.

The problem isn't ambition. It's timing.

THE PREMISE

Scaling solves
the right problems.
It magnifies the wrong ones.

If your foundation isn't ready,
growth doesn't fix the cracks. It just makes them more expensive.

READY TO SCALE — SIGN 01

Your revenue is predictable.

You're not riding one lucky month. Customers arrive consistently — and you can forecast next quarter with confidence.

You have systems, not superheroes.

The business runs on process — not on one person pulling eighteen-hour days to hold it together.

✓ READY TO SCALE

READY TO SCALE — SIGN 03

You know where every customer comes from.

Your acquisition is repeatable and measurable — a channel you can turn up, not a stroke of luck you wait for.

✓ READY TO SCALE

WHERE CLIENTS COME FROM

NOT READY — WARNING 01

You're solving the same problems every week.

Hiring more people won't fix broken operations. It just adds more people to the same fire.

× NOT READY

Same fire, Monday

Same fire, Tuesday

Same fire, again

Same fire, Friday

The business stops when you stop.

If growth depends entirely on you, you don't have a company yet. You have a demanding job.

× NOT READY

THE TAKEAWAY

The best time to scale
isn't when demand explodes.

It's when your business can handle success.
